Prize Winner of Year Brought In

Edgar Laseter Sets New Mark In Melon Growing

Produces the Largest of Which There Is Any Record.

PERFECT SPECIMEN

Not First Time Laseter
Has Set Record for Huge Melons.

Growing watermelons is a business with many Hempstead county men, not just a hobby. Laseter brothers, Turner, Powell, Dudley—all have had a hand in turning out the champion melon in various years, sometimes one winning and sometimes the other, but this year Edgar Laseter, who was first to produce big melons here, sets a mark for others to shoot at which will cause them to raise the sights on their melon-growing ambitions.

On display at Gibson Drug Company here now is the melon which will probably be this year's champion—nearly ten pounds heavier than any of which there is a record. It pulls down on the scales to exactly 152 1-2 pounds, a record not expected to be soon surpassed.

A melon of this weight is not, as many think a freak growth, which fact has been demonstrated by the yearly increase in weight of prize winners. Careful selection of seed, proper choice of soils, scientific—cultural methods make the growth only above normal. Crossing of varieties is bringing in other grades, some of which will eventually exceed in weight the present champions, though the season will have to be stretched a bit to give them time to develop.

The melon Laseter brought in and which has attracted much attention during the fair is of the Triumph variety, while the melon of the future, growers believe, will be a cross between the Tom Watson and the Triumph. Such a cross was brought in by Laseter as a companion to the big one. It weighed only 111 pounds, a substantial increase over last year's largest cross growth, and indicates what may be expected in future of this particular strain.

Webb Funeral Services Held At Family Home

Funeral services for Mrs. Emma Webb, wife of Ben L. Webb, in a hospital at San Antonio, were held from the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Webb at three o'clock this afternoon, Dr. W. R. Anderson in charge. Burial was in Rose Hill cemetery.

Next Week To Be Cement Plant Week

Public To Be Invited To Inspect Operation
of Plant.

OKAY, Sept. 27.—The week beginning next Tuesday, October 1, has been designated by the Arkansas Portland Cement Company as Opening Week at their large cement plant at Okay, and during this time the general public is invited to visit the plant and be shown the operation of the only cement plant in the state, except on Wednesday.

The plant is always open to visitors from 7 a. m. until 5 p. m., but during next week guides will be furnished to take visitors through the buildings which are otherwise closed to unguided visitors as a matter of safety. During the week the visitors will be shown the most interesting parts of the plant, as well as have the operations explained to them.

Next Wednesday will be special day for visitors from distant parts of the state by special invitation, and local friends are requested to select another day for their visit to avoid confusion from too many to handle successfully. A special train will be run from Little Rock for this occasion.

It is expected that all the people of this part of the state who are interested in the development of the state will visit the plant during the week designated.

Waggoner Trial Set for Friday of Next Week

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—(AP)—Chas. D. Waggoner, president of the Bank of Telluride, Colo., pleaded not guilty today in Federal court to an indictment charging mail fraud. His trial was set for next Friday.

Mrs Pantages Near Death, Doctors Say

Wife of Theatre Magnate
Is In Desperate Condition Physicians Say.

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 27.—(AP)—Mrs. Lois Pantages, who was under instruction to appear in Superior Court at two o'clock this afternoon for sentence in connection with the death of Rokomoto, a Jap. In an auto accident, was declared by her physicians to be hovering between life and death, too critically ill to appear in court.

Mrs. Pantages was convicted by a jury on the theory she was intoxicated at the time. She collapsed when the jury verdict was read.

Pastor Defends Color Line Ruling

Southerner In Long Island
Doesn't Care for Negroes
At His Church.

EAST HAMPTON, L. I., Sept. 27.—"I feel it my duty to maintain the integrity of my parish."

This was the first and cardinal reason given today by the embattled Rev. William S. Blackshear, storm center of racial dispute since he advised negro worshippers not to attend his church, St. Matthew's Protestant Episcopal church, at Brooklyn, when he explained his action to a conference of the Episcopal clergy at East Hampton.

In a statement of his fellow clergy, he added this second reason:

"I wish to advance the kingdom of God among the negro race and I hold that this is best accomplished by his own agencies. For this purpose the church maintains negro churches. Therefore, when I accept a negro as a member of my parish, I consider that I am not cooperating with what I believe is the best policy of the Protestant Episcopal church."

"Every man has a right to his own opinion, but he must face the facts," he said. "Now the fact is no matter what your theory or mine may be, that a negro member of a white congregation has not the full scope for development of his parochial life that is offered him in a congregation composed of his own race."

Mrs. Stone Found Guilty of Murder

Loses Composure for First Time When Verdict
Returned.

BEAIR (Md., Sept. 27.—(AP)—Mrs. Mattie Stone, 40 year old widow who, during her four-day trial for murder was painted by the state as a woman who had rather run around with men than to have her 15-year-old son George and hence killed him, was found guilty early today of second degree murder by a jury in circuit court.

With the announcement of the verdict, which carries a maximum sentence of 18 years, the minimum left to the discretion of trial Judge Walters Preston, Mrs. Stone, who had sat, stony-faced and grim while the state presented its case and who yesterday grew spiteful and showed irritation on cross examination, broke down and wept.

Tiger-Mulerider Clash To Feature Day's Program

Tiger Special Train At 2:00 O'Clock With Arkadelphia Fans.

A. & M. HERE EARLY

Magnolia Contingent Begins Arriving Via Auto
At Early Hour.

Peak of interest in matters athletic at Hope's annual Fair will be reached early this afternoon when the Ouachita Tigers, Arkadelphia, meet the Magnolia A. & M. Muleriders in a contest for supremacy on the football field, the event attracting more than usual interest because of the outstanding excellence of the teams this year.

At two o'clock a special train from Arkadelphia pulled in, bearing some 300 Ouachita rooters—and this takes no account of those arriving last night to lay over the week-end. And they advertised the fact to Fair visitors that Arkadelphia had come to town to cheer its clawing tigers to a win.

The football field is in splendid condition for the game, that detail having been assigned to and capably looked after by Eusel Coleman, local coach. Game will be called promptly at 2:30 o'clock.

The visitors coming in on the special train were met at the station by car owners who saw that they reached the field in ample time for the game. Committees from the several civic organizations in the city were assigned to this duty and right capably did they perform.

The visitors were headed by the Tiger band and the organization entertained with a number of selections, both at the station and in the business district before heading to the Park.

Many of the visitors, both Magnolia and Arkadelphia adherents, are staying over tonight to take in the sights at the Park and see some of the many things on exhibition at the Fair.

Loreco To Widen Its Business Line

Southern Company Installs "Master Service" System.

Tentative plans for expansion of the Arkansas Division of the Louisiana Oil Refining corporation, which will consolidate with the present distribution facilities of the Gay Oil Company about October 1 were announced recently by S. E. Towery, who will act as division manager for the new company.

Headquarters for operations in Arkansas and in the Memphis territory, including those formerly directed by the Gay organization, will be maintained in the Gay building at Third and Broadway, Little Rock, it was said. The clerical and executive departments will be enlarged to accommodate additional volume. Three new executives have already been added to the staff and assumed their duties: Fred A. Watkins, as division auditor; T. N. Herron, as chief engineer for Arkansas; and S. C. Long, as office manager of the Arkansas division. As previously announced, J. A. Welch, secretary and treasurer of the Gay Company, will be assistant to Mr. Towery, and C. C. Breeding, formerly city salesman for Gay, is to be Little Rock agent.

The combined Arkansas operations now include 39 local agencies or "bulk stations" from which wholesaling operations are conducted. It is anticipated that many cities in Arkansas located at intermediate points between two of these agencies will be entered with in the next few months. Additional service stations of the characteristic Loreco will be constructed or leased in towns where operations are now conducted.

The Louisiana Oil Refining Corporation, with general offices at Shreveport, has been called "America's most rapidly expanding oil marketing concern." Primarily a Southern company, with practically all its executive offices South—(continued on page six)

Rules as Queen of Mexican Fete

She was named the most beautiful girl on the Mexican border by a quite impartial jury and ruled the 119th annual 16th of September festival, Mexico's national holiday. She is Esther Molinar, 19, of El Paso—and one doesn't need to be told the judges down along the border know their beauty!

Peacock Case To Jury Late Today

Defense Attorney Bitterly
Scores Officer Who Was State's Witness.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Sept. 27.—(AP)—Sidney A. Symes, defense counsel in the Peacock murder trial, asserted today in his closing argument that the evidence on which conviction of his client was sought "was not sufficient to convict a dog, let alone a man."

He exonerated a police officer who as one of the state's chief witnesses and who, on cross examination, admitted he had not told the jury the whole truth about an alleged confession.

"That cheap cop," the lawyer said, "was guilty of a deliberate attempt to murder this boy by his lying testimony, and on this kind of evidence you are asked to send this boy to the electric chair. You wouldn't accept a story like that against your dog."

Symes' argument consumed two and one-half hours and at its conclusion court recessed for noon. The state's closing arguments will be brief and it is thought the case will be given to the jury late this afternoon.

Lemley Host To Kiwanis At Home

Club Members View Rare and Valuable Collection of Local Man.

Hope Kiwanis club had Harry Lemley as its guest of honor at luncheon yesterday in the Capital hotel.

The luncheon meeting was cut short and the entire club adjourned to Mr. Lemley's home to view his famous collection of archaeological rarities, said to be the third finest private collection in America.

Mr. Lemley has the exhibit housed in a fire-proof building near his home, and the Kiwanians spent an hour going over it with him.

Many Injured When Train Derailed Near Clay Center

CLAY CENTER, Kan., Sept. 27.—(AP)—A score of persons were injured, none seriously, when a Rock Island passenger train, south bound from Omaha, was derailed four miles west of here early today.

Among the passengers injured was Dr. J. M. Minor, of Memphis, suffering from shock, and J. A. Wright, of Booneville, Ark., head badly cut.

Frenchman Trying Paris-East Flight

Coste, French Ace, With His Pal, Flying Into Siberia.

LeBOURGET, Sept. 27.—(AP)—Estward from Paris early today streaked Dieudonne Coste, French air ace, and his bosom friend, Maurice Bellante, in the famous sesqui-plane, Question Mark, on a long distance flight to far Siberia.

Although it had been announced that the flight of the intrepid and temperamental Frenchman and his companion would be eastward, uncertainty prevailed until after dawn many being certain that Coste would attempt another crossing of the Atlantic to make a New York landing.

In keeping with its name, the Question Mark was rolled out of its hangar at dawn this morning to the further puzzlement of watchers who wanted to see the start of the flight.

Wireless equipment and unnecessary parts of every kind were discarded and the ship loaded with every gallon of gasoline it was possible to load on her.

Where the Bright Lights Shine

Being A Few Observations At Random Out
To the Park Last Night

Several ladies, many little girls and just a few boys carry kewpie dolls. Boys all look extremely self-conscious.

Bald-headed man riding the merry-go-round, alternating between it and the hula-hula dancing show.

Concession man showing prospective how he is certain to win a blanket by investing a dime at most.

Hardans, a living ball of fire, hurtling through space from the top of his 90-foot ladder to a tiny tank of water far below.

Lady wrestler appears for the "pitch" and the crowd swarms in to the show. It's a handicap match, she is to be thrown in seven minutes. All wrong. The bird that's wrestling her couldn't throw her in a week.

The "jig show" makes a pitch. A few limber, nimble toe-taps by way of introduction and Shafer and Williams, end men, move inside with the crowd following. 14 shows Thursday was not so bad.

Mussolini Punishes Anti-Fascist Leader

ROME, Sept. 27.—(AP)—Cesare Rossi, anti-Fascist leader, charged with conspiracy to overthrow the regime and fomenting revolution to take the life of Mussolini, was sentenced to 30 years' imprisonment today by a special tribunal.

Waldo Gridsters Win From Stamps

In Bitterly Contested Battle Yellow Jackets
Meet Defeat.

In the curtain raiser to the stellar football tilt of the year in southwest Arkansas, played here this morning, Waldo walked over the Stamps Yellow Jackets to the tune of 13 - 0, pulling out of a bad first quarter to show their rivals the way the rest of the game.

The teams were rather evenly matched as to weight, the Yellow Jackets showing lack of condition and training, that same being largely responsible for the final result. To see both teams in action later in the season will be a sight worth watching.

Melons, Peaches Talked At Rotary

Howard County Man Tells Club of Things In This Part of State.

Tribute to Hempstead county's nationally-famous watermelon industry was paid at Rotary club luncheon today in the Barlow hotel by C. L. Rogers, county agent of Howard county.

"Up around Nashville," said the Howard county man, "we have a famous industry too—the peach orchard business. But worms and one thing and another have given it a less optimistic look in recent years. We think we have the trouble remedied now and believe both peaches and watermelons will help to make this the most famous corner in Arkansas and the Southwest."

Hiram Wilson, a peach grower from Nashville, was another speaker, having stopped in Hope to make up his Rotary attendance. He was returning home from Magnolia A. & M. where he brought his son up to the Magnolia-Ouachita football game here today.

E. T. Brown, of the Electrical Research company, Shreveport office, was introduced by Jack Eaves and spoke briefly.

Star Cash Prizes In Dairy Contest Stay Close Home

Spring Hill Youths Take
First In Contest More Than Close.

WORK NEAR PERFECT

Judges Say Youngsters
Proficient In Many Dairy Matters.

Spring Hill 4-H club won first place in the competition of dairy demonstration teams this morning at the Southwest Arkansas Fair, in which the Star is offering $25 in cash prizes.

The winning team was Wilburn Powell and Rinaldo Sooter, and their subject, "Selecting a Profitable Dairy Cow." The same topic was chosen by the Green Laseter 4-H club, Russell Lewallen and J. T. Butler, who captured second prize.

Third place went to the DeAnn 4-H club, Ronald Smith and Earl Pool, with their subject, "The Production of Sanitary Milk."

The contest was largely attended, and the competition for cash prizes was keen. The competition was judged by: Carlisle Rodgers, farm agent of Howard county; Kenneth Seager, vocational agricultural teacher of Bodcaw; and H. C. Thomas, field representative of the Haynes-Grain and Commission company, Little Rock.

The cash prizes posted by The Star early in the summer for this event were: First, $12; second, $8; third, $5.

New Orleans Is Hi- Jackers Heaven

"H'ist-Em Boys" Having
Real Picnic In Crescent
City.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 27.—(AP)—On top of the daring hold-ups by robbers in one of which Gernart, Jr., a gambler, was slain, police announced the finding of the striped body of a man in Jackson Square, almost in the very shadow of the old St. Louis cathedral.

The left side of the man's head was crushed in as if he had been struck by the blunt side of an ax. He was tentatively identified by police as Richard Wahler, head cook of the steamer Analco, now undergoing repairs in the dock here.

Valuable papers, a gold pen and pencil and 62 cents in money were found in the pockets of the dead man, leaving the suspicion in the minds of investigators that vengeance lead to the slaying.

Talking Pictures In Nashville Soon

Frank Horton, of Liberty
Theatre, Signs for
"Talkies."

Nashville, Sept. 27.—Manager Franklin Horton of the Liberty Theatre announces the consummation of a deal by which the Liberty theatre will soon be running talking pictures regularly for the show goers of Nashville and the surrounding country, the contract for the installation of the new equipment providing for the installation within three weeks. This will put Nashville people on the same footing with the patrons of the largest picture houses of the country.

Through the talking pictures the splendor of Broadway—the finest voices in the world—the finest drama in the world—is made available to all the people of the world, and Nashville is to be a part of the world receiving this advantage.

Mr. Horton has spent some time in studying the various talking picture equipments, and has purchased the one most adapted to his use here, in order to give the people the best of pictures obtainable.

"Toning Down" the Bible

IN a London dispatch dated September 24 The Associated Press reports, the following:

An expurgated copy of the Bible was issued today by the National Sunday School Union.

Among the changes of phase, the invitation to Joseph by Potiphar's wife is translated "his master's wife cast eyes upon Joseph and tempted him to do evil," and in the story of the prodigal son "evil companions" is substituted for "harlots".

St. John's account of Christ's treatment of the woman taken in adultery is omitted.

The soberly considered action of a church group in editing the Bible for juvenile readers will be taken seriously by all Christian people. Whether all groups agree with the action taken in London, however, is quite another matter.

The Bible, as the cornerstone of the Christian religion and a model of morals and good rhetoric, has a certain prestige in its exact text and full length that makes those who go about changing or reducing it, liable to the charge of taking themselves too seriously.

How that may be in this case, we aren't qualified to judge. We should like to hear it discussed in one of the pulpits of Hope. It would be a valuable contribution to popular understanding of the Bible in its relation to good conduct.

As a newspaper we are constantly hearing the criticism, "Why do the papers give so much space to crime? Stories of crime breed more crime."

There seems to be a touch of that same criticism against the Bible, if we interpret our London dispatch correctly.

The power of suggestion is an admitted factor. But it is usually restrained by a rational man's knowledge and fear of the consequences of wrong-doing. The power of suggestion is curbed, if not altogether destroyed, when one man watching another see him commit a crime and then pay the inexorable penalty demanded by the moral law.

Thus, in the classic case of Macbeth, the illustration of poetic justice required first that we show a weak man allowing his ambitious wife to lead him to murder, in order that the moral lesson of his dreadful end might be driven home.

Stories of crime in the newspapers begin with the deed of violence, continue through formal court trial, and conclude with the verdict of the jury. Proof of our moral consciousness appears in the fact that every once in a while the public sense of justice is outraged by a verdict that fails to measure up to the report of the deed.

One can readily see that nothing could be left out of the train of newspaper reporting—from the original crime down to the jury's report—without seriously affecting the moral consciousness of the public. The act must be described, and the verdict must be told.

"Toning down" literature for purposes of good morality is sometimes advisable—but it will come as a shock to many people that this has actually been done in the case of the Bible.

The Loss of Our Forests

IT is not a pleasant picture that is painted for American citizens by Major George P. Ahern, one of the country's greatest forestry experts, in his recent pamphlet, "Deforested America."

Reviewing our rapid destruction of our timber reserves, Major Ahern estimates that in 25 years, at the most, the last of our privately-owned forests will be gone. The nation will have to import practically all of its lumber supply, prices will go sky-rocketing and the farmer, whose means will not permit him to build of brick or steel, may actually have to go back to the primitive adobe for construction purposes.

Major Ahern does the entire country a service in emphasizing the peculiarly wasteful way in which the nation has provided itself with lumber.

Only a few decades ago vast forests covered Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota. The loggers moved through those states inexorably—and today their timber stand is gone. Operations now center on the Pacific coast; and there the story of the middle west is being repeated.

Proper reforestation methods, if adopted, could insure an ample supply of timber for future generations. But these are not being adopted by the lumbermen, says Major Ahern, because of the expense.

To make matters worse, the government-owned forests—step in the right direction—are suffering terrible destruction by forest fires. In 1920 forest fires burned over 3,500,000 acres of timber land; last year the figure had risen to the amazing total of 34,000,000 acres. Congress, says Major Ahern, refuses to appropriate enough money to provide the proper fire protection.

All in all, Major Ahern's picture is a dismal one. It is one that every American ought to study. The way the nation has wasted its timber is a disgrace; no time should be lost in adopting an adequate, comprehensive reforestation program, no matter what the cost.

They've Got the Range!

WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER

WASHINGTON — The Hon. Claudius Hart Huston, the new head of the Republican national committee, makes all his long distance trips by air, attributes his good health to light eating and is likely to prove the smartest national chairman his party has had in a long time.

He is distinctly a Hoover choice and as far as your correspondent can gather his mental processes and abilities considerably resemble the president's. He is more amiable, however, and mixes more readily with all varieties of people, else he would not be fit for his new job.

It begins to appear that Huston had much more to do with the nomination and perhaps the election of Hoover than he has commonly been credited with. For several years before the Kansas City convention he had been leading and in those years Hoover needed nothing more than those acquaintanceships.

He Found the Money
It was Houston, one understands, who raised most of the money in the larger Hoover pre-convention campaign fund and his ability at that game will be one of his principal assets in the national chairmanship. He is regarded as a practical politician.

In the closet of his hotel room at Kansas City Houston had a direct telephone line running to the Hoover home in Washington. The line was often used and after the presidential nomination the sagacious Houston was heard to tell the candidate: "Keep out of the vice-presidential contest. All your friends are in it."

During the election campaign, he came to be regarded as the political godfather of Col. Horace A. Mann, the politician who had more to do with breaking up the solid south than any other Republican through his aid and direction of the anti-Smith Democrats.

Huston made himself. He was born in Harrison County, Indiana, 54 years ago, attended a one-room rural school and became a country school teacher. Working on a farm in summer, he picked up enough money to attend Valparaiso University in Chattanooga, Tenn., who had started the Chattanooga Normal University. Later he bought a small business college there and came into contact with business men and manufacturers.

He branched into the work of reorganizing and refinancing corporations and became one of the big business men of Chattanooga. He reorganized the Trans-Continental Oil Company and recently resigned as chairman of its board. For two years he has had the management of the banks and other properties of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers. These and other business concerns he is now dropping to devote himself to his new job in national politics.

Was Ade to Hoover
His first close contact with Hoover came when he served as assistant secretary of commerce. Hoover had a big program of reorganization and extension on, and that was Huston's meat. Huston spread out, too, and since leaving the Commerce Department in 1923 has been operating as a business doctor and banking expert mostly from New York, where he lives on Park avenue.
He is six feet tall and weighs about 185. His hair, parted in the middle, is gray, and his eyes are gray and piercing. He smiles engagingly and often and has a large human side. He mixes equally well with plutocrats, politicians and pugilists. His adaptability and amiability mate with a great energy and an active mind. He has no oratorical ability, but speaks slowly and evenly with a clear, concise choice of words.

News of Other Days

From the Files of the Star
25 YEARS AGO

25 Years Ago
A wedding to a considerable interest to a number of friends here and over the state, was that of Miss Chester Andrews and Dr. Luther M. Lile, which occurred yesterday, September 26th, at three o'clock, at the home of the bride's grandmother, Mrs. Julia McRae, on East Division street. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Alonzo Monk, of the Methodist church, and was witnessed by the family and a few intimate friends. The bride was married in a becoming coat-suit of brown cloth, with hat and accessories to correspond. She carried a beautiful bride's bouquet. The happy pair left on No. Six for a short honeymoon trip, after which they will return to Hope to make their home. The bride is a pretty and accomplished girl, having an especially charming personality. Dr. Lile, the popular groom, is a raising young physician, coming to Hope from Jonesboro, after having received his discharge from the army early in the year; and making many friends who will wish them both a long and happy married life.
W. F. Foster returned yesterday from New York, where he went to attend the National Bankers' Association convention, as a delegate from Arkansas.

My Favorite Bible Passage

Today's Choice
by
DR. NICHOLAS MURRAY BUTLER

The Twenty-third Psalm
Psalm 19, quoting verses 1-9.
The heavens declare the glory of God; and the firmament sheweth His handiwork. Day unto day uttereth speech, and night unto night sheweth knowledge. There is no speech nor language, where their voice is not heard. Their line is gone out through all the earth, and their words to the end of the world.

In them hath He set a tabernacle for the sun, which is as a bridegroom coming out of his chamber, and rejoiceth as a strong man to run a race. His going forth is from the end of the heaven, and his circuit unto the ends of it: and there is nothing hid from the heat thereof.

The law of the Lord is perfect, converting the soul: the testimony of the Lord is sure, making wise the simple. The statutes of the Lord are right, rejoicing the heart: the commandment of the Lord is pure, enlightening the eyes. The fear of the Lord is clean, enduring forever; the judgments of the Lord are true and righteous altogether.

In the beginning was the Word and the Word was with God, and the Word was God. The same was in the beginning with God. All things were made by Him; and without Him was not any thing made that was made. In Him was life; and the life was the light of men. And the light shineth in darkness; and the darkness comprehended it not.—John 1:1-5.

OUT OUR WAY

SOCIETY

Mrs. Sid Henry Telephone 321

They cost so little, but they mean so much. The fleeting kindness along one's way—
A flower, a smile, a sympathetic touch,
A loan to him who knew a better day,
An hour spent listening with kindly ear
To one who failed his happiness to find;
A merry, helpful little word of cheer
To those who all in body or mind.
If we could only keep our vision free
Of just the joys and troubles of our own.
What treasure—trove we'd gleam for memory.
From these small deeds upon life's pathway down—Selected.

Mr. and Mrs. John Daly Parker and daughter of Prescott were shopping in the city and seeing the Fair yesterday.

Mrs. L. W. Ball of Ozan spent yesterday shopping in the city. Miss Mary Jones of Emmet is spending Fair week visiting with her sister, Mrs. Harvey Betts and Mr. Betts.

Mr. and Mrs. Sid Davenport and Mrs. M. A. Briant visited with relatives in Ashdown this week.

Mrs. Ernest Wingfield has returned from a short visit with Mr. and Mrs. Harry Crow in Texarkana.

Mrs. A. V. Walker, who has spent the past week visiting with Mr. and Mrs. N. W. Denty and other relatives in the city, left yesterday for her home in Little Rock.

The "Lows" of the Thursday Bridge Club entertained the "Highs" yesterday at a beautifully appointed luncheon at one o'clock at the Hotel Barlow. The dining table was centered with lovely pink roses. Covers were laid for nine, and a most tempting five course luncheon was served. Following the luncheon bridge was played from two tables at the home of Mr. and Mrs. N. W. Denty on N. Washington street.

Mr. and Mrs. N. W. Denty will be hosts to the members of the Emmanon club this evening at their home on North Washington street. Mrs. Carl Smith has returned from a visit with friends in New Orleans, La.

TALKING FILMS BRINGS NEW SIGHTS INTO STUDIO
Actors who walk up and down, feverishly talking to themselves; directors with sleeves rolled up, frantically poring over "sides" of dialogue; and song writers here and there "Um - la - la - ing" some new chime number—these were the strange sights seen at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios during the filming of "The Trial of Mary Dugan." Bayard Veiller's all-talking picture now playing at the Saenger Theatre.

Screen actors, learning from stage players, have adopted the habit of walking up and down reciting their lines to themselves to memorize them, and directors, too, are busy memorizing lines for practice—as more talking pictures are coming.

Norma Shearer, Lewis Stone, H. R. Warner and Raymond Hackett, juvenile lead of the stage version of the play, head the cast in the picture version. An actual stage rehearsal was carried on, and not a camera was turned or microphone adjusted until the players were better perfect in lines and action.

THIS HAS HAPPENED
Helen Page feels unhappy when her classmates accuse her of being in love with her handsome guardian, Leonard Brent. But he represents all that she knows of home and family and she adores him blindly.
Brent changes all his plans for Helen's future after a chance meeting with a dying beggar, Charles Owens Nellin, who tells a strange story which Brent is able to corroborate to some extent by a visit to Yonkers.

On graduating, Helen reminds her guardian of his promise to reveal her parentage and is introduced to Cunningham as his granddaughter. He offers as proof the locket containing a picture of Evangeline Cunningham which he had taken from the dying Nellin.

Helen remains at Bramblewood while the lawyer investigates the story. Cunningham presents her with a car which she drives everywhere. One day she accidentally strikes a girl, Eva Ennis, who has to be taken to the hospital. Eva's brother, Robert, upbraids Helen for her selfish recklessness and then, noting her unstrung condition, offers to drive her home. Cunningham receives

New York for dinner and the theatre. Coming home that night he kisses Helen for the first time and tells her that he loves her. Cunningham gives an old-fashioned party in honor of Helen's 19th birthday, and Brent finds a locket on the floor which proves to be similar to Helen's. When he finds that Helen is wearing hers, he persuades her to take it off.
NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XVII
With Eva within hearing distance, Brent was compelled to veto Helen's suggestion of an early morning drive.

Brent felt certain of Helen at that moment. It remained now for him only to play his cards with skill. Mr. Cunningham was failing fast—no one could reasonably give him very much time to live. Brent weighed the probable date of his death with all the calculating coldness of his nature and decided he must keep his relations with Helen as they were until that event occurred.
For Mr. Cunningham, he was convinced, would not consent to a marriage between him and Helen.
But for all his planning when he left her that night, he was a shade warmer toward her than he had been before. They were in the rose garden and there was a soft glow of color in the sky that lent a romantic glamor to the setting. Helen reacted to it with a longing to start a new life with the new day.

For weeks after that night she lived in a world apart from that in which she moved as Helen Nellin. There were fewer and fewer trips to town with Brent, owing to her grandfather's increasing feebleness. He wanted her near him. (Continued on page four)

Brent excused himself to Bob with the plea that he wanted to talk to Mr. Cunningham. Bob was glad to see him go.

amazed when he informs her that she is heiress of a millionaire, Cyril K. Cunningham, and that he promised her parents to take her to him when she was 18. They go to Yonkers and Brent him graciously and invites him to spend the evening. The young couple go for a canoe ride. Next day Brent arrives and when he hears about her meeting with Robert asks her to go to

"Like Miss Ennis, I must be in the city early," he said. "I have an appointment with my dentist."

He added the excuse lest Eva might misunderstand and consider that he was trying, under cover, to make an engagement with her. Helen laughed to hide her disappointment and said it was a silly notion anyhow. Her manner completely deceived Eva.

Brent was glad that Bob arrived a few minutes later and broke off his sister's lingering departure. Brent observed the young man and Helen closely when Bob joined them but there was nothing in the greeting to disturb him.

Helen was politely detached and Bob was restrained in his manner. And there was plainly no wish on his part to tarry under the Cunningham roof.

If they could take Leno's car, she thought, and drive away—nowhere, everywhere, let their journey's end be what it may.
"Dreaming?" Brent asked, taking her hand.
Helen sighed.
"So many girls would be wildly excited to have had a fairy wand waved over their heads," Brent went on. "Think of it, dear, you will be very rich some day."

"Money!" Helen's voice dripped with contempt for the word. Brent smiled at her unworldliness.
"I'm glad to be acknowledged as my mother's daughter," Helen said quickly, "and I couldn't think of leaving my grandfather now. He's so feeble and..."

"I know," Brent said gently. Helen looked up at him. "But you will go away," she said wistfully. "You will have those wonderful trips we planned together—you have done everything you promised my father you would do for me—you are free now."

Brent hesitated for effect and his own voice when he spoke, was vibrant with feeling. "I'm afraid," he said, "that I cannot go away—that I cannot leave you, Helen."

Helen reached up her hands and he clasped them together and rested his forehead upon them. Helen swayed ever so little, yearning to be taken in his arms.

Brent was aware of her desire but he did not satisfy it. "You are so young," he whispered. "I cannot be sure that you know your own heart."

"I know that it is aching," Helen answered.
"My dear," he breathed, "my dear, my dear. You are so sweet and beautiful. Many men will love you. You know nothing of life. I must not take advantage of you. We will wait."

Helen closed her eyes to shut out the world and all but Brent's endearing words.
"Your grandfather would not want to lose you so soon after finding you," Brent continued craftily. "And he is very frail. Anything would be a shock to him if it brought back the memories of his breaking with your mother. I think it would be unwise to tell him of..." this."

Helen nodded her head against his chest.
Brent suppressed a sigh of relief. "We will keep our love a beautiful secret," he said softly and again Helen nodded in assent.

grew to depend upon her for many small services that formerly had been a part of Mark's duties.

But Brent did not allow the time they spent together to be dull. Helen was always eagerly impatient to be with him again. And as the day seemed to draw near when no one would stand between him and his plan to marry the Cunningham millions, he grew even more ardent in his love making, under the guise of giving Helen the sympathy and encouragement she needed.

He drove up one Sunday to call, convinced that he would find Mr. Cunningham greatly on the decline. He was shown to the sick man's room immediately. Much to his surprise he found him sitting in his chair at the window. Brent had expected to find him in bed. He saw at once that the aged man was upset.

He greeted Brent cordially enough and then revealed the cause of his agitation.

"I'm worried about Helen," he explained. "She's been out on the lake with Miss Ennis much longer than she said she would be gone. I was just about to send Marks to see if anything has gone wrong."

Brent, till standing, turned toward the door. "I'll go," he offered.

"I wish you would," Mr. Cunningham agreed. "Helen is always prompt about coming to me when I expect her."

Brent hurried downstairs, not in fear that what he considered a sick man's misgivings might have a foundation in fact but because he wanted to be with Helen. He had but little time to spend at Brablowood on this occasion and he did not wish to waste it on an invalid.

Eva's presence there was a jarring note, but it was not uncommon that they met at Brablowood and Brent trusted himself to carry off the situation satisfactorily.

He found a situation, however, that he was totally unprepared to meet. Out in the lake the canoe floated, bottom side up, and for a few seconds he had a terrifying fear that a fatal accident might have occurred.

Then he saw Helen and Eva on the shore, partly hidden by a clump of flowering shrubs. He rushed over and before he reached them he discovered that they were not alone.

Helen was standing face to face with Bob Ennis, her hands in his, in grasp that filled Brent with cold anger.

Eva saw him before Helen did and Brent thought for a second that she was going to fling herself into his arms. He looked past her at Helen and Bob.

What had happened? he demanded, noticing in a flash that the clothing of all three was dripping wet.

Helen turned to him then and for the first time in many weeks she did not give him the impression of restraining herself with difficulty from rushing to his arms.

"We upset the canoe," Eva explained. "Helen and I."

Brent lifted an eyebrow. "A rescue?" he said coldly. "But I thought you both could swim. I know Helen can."

Helen said nothing, although Brent looked at her and not at Eva.

"Yes, but Helen was caught under the canoe," Eva told him. "Her scarf got wound round her neck and somehow, when we went under, it caught on the canoe and held her there. I couldn't get her free or turn the canoe over. I don't know what would have happened if Bob hadn't come along just in time."

"I see. How do you do, Ennis?" Brent said coldly. Helen regarded him with a startled expression. He caught it and instantly got himself in hand.

"Plucky thing. How did you manage it?" he asked Bob. "Don't really know," Bob returned shortly.

"He's a wonderful swimmer," Eva contributed innocently.

Brent frowned. "Your grandfather is worried about you," he said to Helen.

"Oh, I forgot how long I've been away from him," she confessed. "Come on Eva, I can let you have some clothes." She paused, and turned to Bob, added: "But I don't know what you will do."

"I'll dry out in the sun while I'm waiting for Eva," Bob told her. "Don't be long, sis."

The two girls hurried away and Brent excused himself to Bob with the plea that he wanted to talk with Mr. Cunningham. Bob was glad to see him so.

"And that's the fellow Eva's always raving about," he thought contemptuously as Brent strolled down the path. "Looks like a first-class crook to me."

Eva was not thinking of Brent at the moment. She was concerned with the thought of her dress, a new cliff that had suffered from the bath in the lake.

"Mother will scold me now," she said to Helen. "She hasn't yet forgiven me for losing her pocket the night of your birthday party."

Home Run Hitters Ready For Charge On Series Ramparts

This is the lineup of sluggers for the 1929 world's series. Based on the season's showing, the Cubs appear to have an edge since Wilson and Hornsby have hit about 15 more homers than Simmons and Foxx.

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—After sizing up the pretentious home run hitting brigade marching to the 1929 world's series you get an idea that after all this talk about the fine points of pitching and fielding it may be nothing more than a matter of brute strength.

There's no denying that home run hitting is going to count heavily in deciding the series. That would be be the case regardless of combatants, for this is an era of homers—even the pitchers hit them.

But when great sluggers like Hack Wilson, Al Simmons, Rogers Hornsby and Jimmy Foxx are headed for the classic it is time to give additional consideration to what the damage may be.

There isn't much that can be done about it. It's up to such fast ball flingers as Pat Malone, Lefty Grove, Charley Root and George Earnshaw to try to apply the silencer—if that is possible.

The statistics show that, during the regular season, these sharpshooters have taken the minimum punishment from the distance clouters. But the coming test may be just a little harder to fathom. Grove, Earnshaw and their fellow pitchers will be facing Hornsby and Wilson, two of the National league's high men in the home run business, and such shock troop cluggers as Riggs Stephenson and Kiki Cuyler.

Malone, Root & Co. will have some dangerous looking burs waded in their faces, too, for Simmons and Foxx carry the front line home run attack for the Athletics.

Local Hi Football Squad Holds Malvern To Tie In Thrilling Mix

First Game of Year for Cats Shows Team To Have Greater Offensive Strength—Hold Like Okay Cement In Final Desperate Quarter.

Coach Eusel Coleman's Hope Hi Bobcats dug their claws into the dirt and held against a battering ram attack from the Malvern goal seekers in a thrilling final to yesterday's game.

It was SOME game, observers report. Neither side able to score, with the play being in midfield most of the time. A long pass and a plenty took the ball to Hope's one-yard line. Right there the Bobcats showed the stuff that's in 'em. They stayed right there for three downs—and nobody got by. That pass, by the way, would have been good for a touchdown—perfectly completed it was—but Ralph Taylor, speedy halfback, stepped up behind the lad with the ball and dented Mother Earth with him. That was that—and nobody made anything. Nothing to nothing was the final score.

It was the first game of the year for the Bobcats, the second for Malvern. The Cats had an idea they were a football team, but they hadn't proven it. Last year they took Malvern 6-0 but this year they faced a much stronger team, the first few minutes of play demonstrating that Malvern was back in form, ready to claim high school honors on the gridiron. A completed pass last year won for Hope and a completed pass this year, but for the superior speed of Taylor, in the backfield for the Cats, would have won for Malvern.

Coach Coleman is elated at the showing his youngsters made and while giving out no optimistic interviews as to his team's standing at the close of the season modestly suggests that the team beating them will have to know their football.

Coleman used only one man in the fray, though taking 18 up with him. The starting line-up was: Reeves, end; Plant, tackle; Chamberlain, guard; Edgar, center; Tinsley, guard; Drake, tackle; Harrell, end; Ellis, quarter; Wray, half; Taylor, half; Bacon, full. Smith and Collier went in as subs in the last half, replacing Chamberlain and Wray, and gave good account of themselves.

BAKER WAS HERO OF 1911 WORLD SERIES
PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 26.—(AP)—Home run hitters of today never received more enthusiastic acclaim than did Franklin Baker, the home run sensation of the world series of 1911.

Baker, in the classic game between the Philadelphia Athletics and the New York Giants, the second meeting of these old rivals in for the American Leaguers on a homer and saved another by poling a four-base drive in the ninth inning with one out, his team winning in the eleventh also with Baker's help.

The home run hitter of the Athletics won the second game of the series with a mighty drive in the 6th inning off one of Rube Marquard's offerings. Eddie Collins, who had doubled, was on second when Baker, with the count one and one, lifted a low pitch over the right field wall of Shibe Park. The score at the time was tied at 1 and 1 and the game ended 3 to 1.

The game Baker saved was the third, which was played on the Polo grounds in New York. The wonderful Mathewson had been pitching fine ball. The score was one to nothing in favor of the Giants, with Jack Combs pitching even better than Matty. With one out and a run needed to tie in the ninth inning, the much-feared Baker came to bat. Matty was all for Baker sent the next got two strikes on him and that pitch crashing into the right field stand.

The hit was a crushing disappointment to Mathewson and his pitching thereafter showed it. The Athletics, with renewed energy, kept hammering away and won the game in the eleventh inning, three to two, Baker making a single and scoring the third and what proved to be the winning run. The Giants made a desperate try to tie the score in their half of the eleventh, but were able to score but one run.

Chicago's Problems

The decline in athletic prowess at the University of Chicago during the last five years has afforded an interesting study. Steadily the shield of Coach Stagg has been losing its impregnability. Some are inclined to blame it on higher scholastic requirements that enter more to the lads with the bulging brows than to the big-chested fellows. Others say Stagg after 37 years of producing football teams, is growing old. Still others assert football strength ebbs and flows like a tide, and right now the tide at Chicago is on theebb.

A reporter went out to see the new president of the University about it the other day. The prexy is a man of 30 who left a post at Yale Law School to guide Chicago's destinies.

What the Prexy Says
The reporter asked whether or not there would be any chance of Chicago's letting down the scholastic requirements to the level of the other western schools in order to accommodate the unemployed blacksmiths.

"Rather, I think we should try to bring the others up to our standard," was Prexy Hutchins' reply.

"I believe these athletic booms are cyclic. Out in our Big Three (Yale, Harvard and Princeton) one team was not always at the top. Our friends, Northwestern, here, have been up and then down, haven't they?"

"Our requirements here are no higher than those of the big schools in the east. Students get in here who couldn't get into Princeton. We play Princeton this year, and I understand we are to be beaten. If scholarship requirements are the gauge, we should beat Princeton, shouldn't we? So there must be something more to it than that.

Stagg's Fifteen Men
In the meantime, out on the football field, Mr. Stagg goes about the business of producing his 38th annual football team without much prospect for having what the boys call a "wow." The Old Man of the Midway faces a marked lack of reserve material.

Because of scholastic requirements, Stagg, one of the pioneers in developing the modern notion of a football team that uses three sets of men for a game, will have few players available.

"I will be able to depend upon having only about 15 men and I will concentrate on these players," says he. There are only a few veterans, and no previous indications of brilliance.

"Of course, the new men will display helpful enthusiasm because there is a chance for almost anyone to make this team. That enthusiasm must go a long way to make up for skill and experience."

The picture of the veteran Stagg trying to cast a football machine out of 15 men must be a sad one for the Maroon alumni to look upon. But there you are, and we won't know for several years yet how it's all going to turn out.

A Britisher flew 368 miles an hour the other day, and the Graf Zeppelin set a record for circling the globe. You'd think with all these new speed records being established the Congress would catch on to what it's all about.

47-Pounder Is College Student

Here's the smallest student ever to enroll at the University of Illinois. George P. Brown, above, of Mattoon, weighs only 47 pounds and is 48 1/2 inches tall, as he stands above. He was fourth ranking graduate of his high school class, and a very good cheer leader. Incidentally, he hopes to be a newspaperman some day.

Accused Textile Strikers Hold Class in Cell

They're charged with first degree murder, and soon will be on trial again for their lives. But while the thirteen men who are held in Charlotte, N. C., for the murder of Gastonia's chief of police await their turn in court, they're studying the precepts of communism with the avowed intention of spreading it through the National Textile Workers' Union. Here you see the defendants in their locked and barred classroom during a lecture by Fred Beal, union leader, who is shown at the end of the table.

Where Lindy Blazed New Airmail Trail

Colonel Charles Augustus Lindbergh, accompanied by Mrs. Lindbergh this time, blazed a new airmail route through the West Indies and along the coast of South America. This map shows the 7000-mile circular flight which carried him in an inspection tour through 16 countries and also established the first regular airmail service between the United States and Paramaribo, Dutch Guiana, a distance of 2685 miles. The black lines indicate routes in operation. The dotted lines show the proposed route from San Juan, Santo Domingo, over the Windward, Virgin and Leeward islands to Port of Spain, Trinidad, down the east coast of South America to Paramaribo. From Paramaribo, Colonel Lindbergh returned to Port of Spain, where, after a few days of rest, he will fly to Maracay to establish connection of the Miami-Paramaribo and Curacao-Panama-Miami routes. He plans to re-establish connection of the Miami-Paramaribo and Curacao-Panama-Miami routes.
